

Australian Network
for Universal
Housing Design

Best practice examples of universal design in housing

Australian Network for Universal Housing Design (ANUHD) is seeking best practice examples of universal design in housing (one interpretation is the Livable Housing Design Guidelines) that lead to “accessible and well designed communities with opportunity for full inclusion” (National Disability Strategy p. 29) either as a new dwelling, or a modification to an existing dwelling.

The page will be launched on our website www.anuhd.org in March 2019.

ANUHD will not be appraising these examples; rather, if they meet the criterion above, they will be available for website visitors to see what is being built in Australia.

Providing us with an example of your work will publicise your design expertise in this area and assist people to contact you for further information.

We encourage you to complete the attached form with the following information:

Architect, Designer or Builder
Contact email/website
Type of building
Description (<50 words)
Photo (that does not identify the residents or their location)

Thank you for your contribution.

Please send to:

Australian Network for Universal Housing Design at Email: anuhd@anuhd.org

For more information, please contact Margaret Ward Ph: +61 409 898498

Website: www.anuhd.org